

(1). There was a cat that lived on the streets that really wanted to find a home. But nobody wanted him.

(1). Then on one cloudy day, the cat walked down a different street. He saw a boy with red hair sitting by himself, crying. The cat wanted to make him feel better.

(1). So the cat jumped up on the bench, and sat next to him. The cat looked straight up at the red headed boy.

(1). The boy looked down at the dirty cat. The boy pet the cat.

(3). Then some kids started laughing at the red headed boy.

(4). Hahaha. Now you're just as yucky as that dirty cat!

(2). Purrrrrr

(1). The boy hated being laughed at, so he quickly stopped petting the cat.

(3). Hey, you can come back and play basketball with us again, but after you wash your hands.

(2). Go away cat! You're making them laugh at me!

(1). After playing basketball, the red headed boy, and his friends, walked back home together and came across the cat again. As the cat was sitting in the rain, wet, cold, and shaking, the boys were being mean to it and laughed at the cat.

(1). The red headed boy saw how sad the cat was. He walked over to it.

(2). Don't think I'll let you play basketball with us again if you touch that dirty cat!

(3). The red headed boy bent down, and pet the cat anyways.

(4). Hey there real friend. My name is Bruno, and I'm going to take you to your new home, my home.
