

Two girls, Sarah and Rachel, have been best friends since they were toddlers. They are now in middle school, and are taking the same math class together.

2
"2. Yeah. I've studied a lot for it. What about you?"

"1. Hey Sarah, have you studied for that math test yet?"

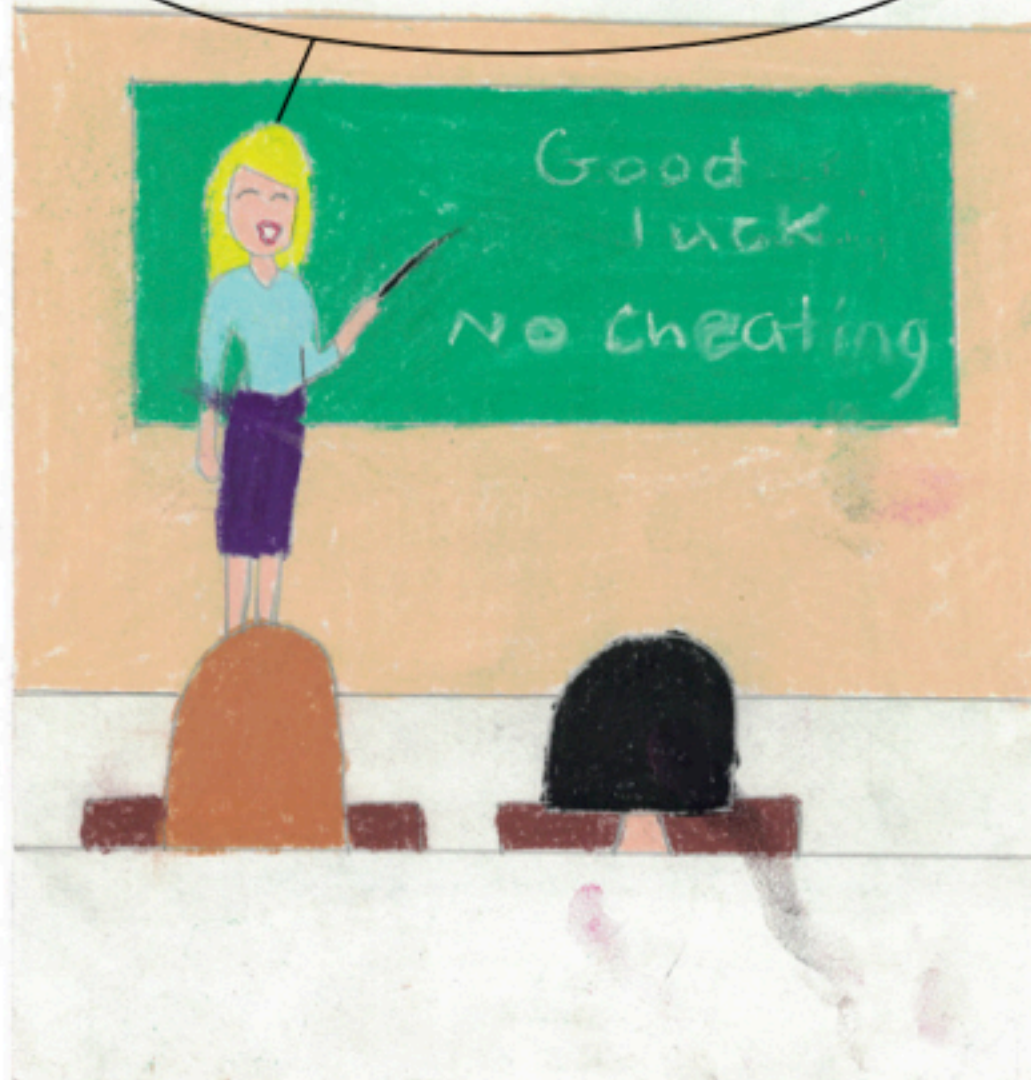

3

I haven't studied at all. But I feel confident that I will do well anyways"

1. It is the day of the test now. They are sitting at their desks.

2. "Alright everyone, I am about to pass your tests out. Remember, no cheating. You have 40 minutes to finish"

"Hmm I better make sure I read each question carefully, so that I don't miss anything, and answer any questions wrong"

1. Sarah looks over at her best friend Rachel. She sees Rachel bubbling in every answer quickly on her answer sheet.

2. But how could she know the answer to each question so quickly? She didn't even study. She's just probably guessing then."

Then Sarah sees Rachel looking over the shoulder of the kid who is sitting right in front of her. It looks like she is copying his answer sheet.

1. Rachel notices that Sarah is looking at her. Rachel whispers to Sarah,

"2. Sarah shhhhh. Don't tell on me. I'm your best friend"

3rd Grade Range 415L - 760L

Mean Sentence Length: 8.27

• Lexile® Measure: 560L (3rd Grade Range 415L - 760L) •

• Mean Log Word Frequency: 3.63